

Dr. Marianne Cintron Announces Grand Opening of Cintron Orton-Gillingham Reading Institute

Expert author, dyslexia coach and educator on YouTube and popular podcast helps thousands learn to read

GLENDORA, Calif. – August 24, 2022 – Dyslexia expert and inspiring author Dr. Marianne Cintron today announced the grand opening of a dedicated online learning center to train teachers about dyslexia and unlock a child’s genius. The Cintron Orton-Gillingham Reading Institute empowers teachers to recognize and help students with dyslexia and respect a student’s reading deficit variations.

Dr. Cintron, who is also a noted speaker, offers the new training program for educators, paraprofessionals, psychologists, behavior therapists, and others who work with children. Her student teachers will be able to give their students the gift of reading, as teachers and students navigate their particular reading issues. Teachers who take the virtual course may become certified and will earn CEUs toward their state’s requirements.

“We are helping dyslexic kiddos read,” said Dr. Cintron. “The Cintron Orton-Gillingham Reading Institute is going to help children overcome their struggle with dyslexia and reading issues. Dyslexic children have been known to become strong readers in only six weeks. The structure of the typical classroom is not created for dyslexic kids who need to move, ask a lot of questions and be given freedom to create. If put in a learning environment where kids have more flexibility, they are more inclined to succeed.”

According to Dr. Clinton, having dyslexia can be a sign or “trait” of someone who is a budding genius. As a matter of fact, 40% of self-made millionaires and 35% of successful U.S. entrepreneurs are dyslexics.

The Cintron Orton-Gillingham Reading Institute offers two educational training programs. Dr. Cintron follows the “Science of Reading” and is considered an expert in the field of differently abled readers and reading courses. Her books and scientific research are globally respected.

Dr. Cintron is an author and public speaker and is followed by thousands on her YouTube and podcast channels. She is a regular guest speaker on BBC TV and the radio show “Raising Expectations” and is an invited annual speaker at the Promise Governance Leadership Conference every September.
